

* The primary helminth of concern is Strongyloides stercoralis, which was historically endemic in some regions of the rural south eastern United States (eg, Appalachia).